MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

'Crown Diamonds' by the Richings Troupe. The Richings English Opera Troupe commenced heir spring season at the Academy of Music last vening, to a moderate sized but appreciative audimoe, with Auber's opera of Crown Diamonds. This work is deservedly a favorite with the public, although it is seldom or never given nowadays, except by the English troupe, as it contains some charming music, and, if creditably performed, is one of the most attractive of the light operas. All the old favorites were well rec eived last evening when they made their appearance on the stage, and the applause was hearty throughout the performance. Mrs. Bernard as "Catterina" did not appear to be in quite as good voice as usual, but she in a great measure recovered power after the first act. The duet with Mr. Castle in the first act, however, was finely executed and much applauded, as was the duet with Mr. Se guin in the second act. Mrs. Seguin as "Diana," Mr. Castle as "Don Henrique," Mr. Campbell as "Rebolledo," and Mr. James Peakes as "Count de Campo Mayor," all sang and acted with a great deal of feeling and expression. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Behrens, was excellent, and the choruses were moderately well given, but open to improvement. The costuming of this opera is unusually handsome, and it is given in a style of completeness that we would wish to see often imitated. It is rumored that this is the last season of the Richings troupe as at present organized, and our opera-goers should, therefore, make the most of the few remaining opportunities, as it is doubtful whether as efficient an English opera company can

"Pepina" at the Arch. Lotta is certainly not an actress in any prope sense of the term, but she has gifts which are, in their way, as important as talent, for they take with the public, and are worth considerable in dollars and cents. As Lotta is popular, and as her peculiar style of performances has a particular fascination for a large number of persons, it seems a pity that she cannot have written for her some dramas which will possess a little merit in themselves, and at the same time allow her to give full swing to the kittenish actions which so delight her audiences, and not, as at present, cause the banjo, walk around, and clog dance to be introduced in season and out of season, whether appropriate or not. Maggie Mitchell waited for some time before Fanchon, with fame and fortune, overtook her, and perhaps Lotta will manage in time to add to her repertoire some dramas of conal merit in their way, and enable her to thrust aside such worthless trash as Fire-Fly, Pepina, and other pieces in which she now appears. The thing is not an impossibility, but the young lady having attained to fame and fortune without the aid of artistic accessories, may think the matter one of no importance. Her appearance in a really good play would add to her attractiveness. however, and increase her popularity with her most

Pepina, the new piece which was produced last evening to an immense and proportionally enthusiastic audience, is really not worthy of serious criticism. The author's only object appears to have been to give Lotta two characters which are as near as possible duplicates of "Little Nell" and the "Marchioness," to introduce as much bone and banjo business as possible, without the slightest regard to dramatic or artistic propriety. There is considerable dialogue about the Board of Brokers, a bond robbery, and various villanous transactions, which is not only uninteresting but intensely stupid, and its only object seems to be to lengthen out the drama, and to keep the audience occupied while Lotta is making her changes of costume. Rumor credits Mr. Edmund Falconer with the authorship of Pepina. This gentleman has written some very clever plays, and Fire Fly, although not entitled to take a high rank in dramatic literature, has a certain amount of dash and spirit about it which redeems it from contempt, but Pepina has no redeeming feature that we can see, and it is about the poorest of all the poor plays that have lately been produced. In spite of this, however, there is no fear that it will not draw crowded houses so long as Lotta personates the beroine, or rather beroines. "Myrtle Myddleton" and "Pepina," we discover at an early stage of the performance, are two sisters, the latter having been stolen when a little child and brought up as a street singer. Lotta is not good in sentimental parts, and her personation of "Myrtle Myddleton" therefore is rather flat, and no one is very sorry when that young lady is carried off the scene by a galloping consumption. As "Pepina" Lotta is more in her element, and as there is plenty of slang, kicks, banjo playing, Jig dancing, etc., the audience are proportionally delighted. "Pepina," of course, is in the fourth act restored to the arms of her longlost father, who murmurs, "Bless ye, me child," and then hands her over to the custody of "Mr. Percy Lyndon," the quondam lover of "Myrtle," who presses her to his heart as the curtain comes down amid thunders of applause.

There are some tolerably good jokes and hits at the manners of the time which the audience is quick to appreciate; but the best thing in the play, to our fancy, is the exciting episode of a street fight, with which the first act concludes, and the bit of satire involved in the capture of an unoffending apple woman by the policeman after the row has fairly concluded.

The City Amusements. AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC the Richings troupe will appear this evening in Maritana. To-morrow evening The Rose of Castile will be given. On Monday evening next Miss Susan Galton will appear as "Arline," in The Bohemian Girl, for the benefit of Mr. S. Behrens, the musical director.

AT THE WALNUT Mr. John Brougham appeared

last evening, to a large audience, as "Terry the Swell," in that singular combination of extravagances entitled The Lottery of Life, with which he startled our play-goers a few seasons ago. This is one of the curiosities of the sensation school of dramatic literature, and it seems so much like a huge joke as to be beyond the reach of criticism. For Mr. Brougham it has been a genuine prize in the lottery of life, as it invariably draws crowded houses in this city, and we believe that it has been equally successful elsewhere. It will be repeated

AT THE ARCH Lotta will appear this evening in Pepina. The performance on Thursday evening will be for the benefit of the Cuban patriots.

AT THE THEATRE COMIQUE Miss Susan Galton will appear this evening in the new operettas of Jessie Lea, by G. A. Macferran, and Les Deux Aveugles, by

AT THE AMERICAN an attractive variety entertainment will be given this evening.

The New York Circus, from the Hippotheatron New York, will exhibit in this city for two weeks, commencing on Monday next, on Eighth street, above Race. This Circus, under the management of move Race. This circus, is the most complete or-ganization of the kind in the country, and it com-prises a great number of first-class performers and well-trained animals. The management will not permit any objectionable features, and the exhibi-tion is one that old and young can visit and enjoy

AT THE CHESNUT STREET RINK, corner of Twentythird and Chesnut streets, a grand prize exhibition will be given this evening. There will be a sack-race by four boys, a blindfold-race on velocipedes, for a season ticket, a slow-race for a season ticket, and a race between race between boys for season tickets, to be awarded to the fastest boy-rider and to the best boy-rider without using the hands. A fine band of music will be in attendance, and some rare sport may be ex-pected. John B. Gorgh, Esq., will lecture on "Temperance," under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, at the Chesnut Street Rink, on Friday evening next. All tickets sold for the other rink will be good on this occasion.
